This forenoon was devoted to a business meeting and a discussion of the subject of marine manures. In the afternoon, the question of success in farming and how to attain it was discussed. This evening, Prof. Jordan of the State College lectured on the sources of plant food. The weather is fine and there is a good attendance.

SKOWHEGAN, Sept. 3. General Garfield addressed a large and the most enthusiastic indoor meeting held here during the campaign, in Coburn Hall, this evening. The audience numbered fifty-eight hundred persons. A special train arrived from Waterville at seven o'clock, bringing the Davis Club and the Coburn University boys. They were met at the depot by a torchlight procession, headed by the Skowhegan Band, and escorted to the hall. The political outlook in Somerset County is bright and bracing for the Republican cause.

SCUMMERS, Miss., Sept. 3. Reports are arriving of the ravages of Monday's storm. Crops and rivers are higher than ever known before, and cotton in the lowlands is under water. SARATOGA, Sept. 3. Among the arrivals at the State Convention last night, was Vice President Wheeler, who arrived at Saratoga at midnight, and pronounced against Cornell. The friends of other candidates express much confidence in this morning's meeting. The convention cannot be obtained for Cornell. There is no evidence of concentration upon any one opponent.

The entrance of Senator Conkling was the signal for considerable applause in the galleries, and he was elected temporary chairman of the convention. He made a long speech on the financial situation and the action of recent Congress, which was received with much enthusiasm. Committees on credentials, permanent organization and resolutions were appointed by the Vice President Wheeler.

Hon. William A. Wheeler was elected permanent Chairman and addressed the Convention in a speech which was a general and forcible arraignment of the Democratic policy and record during the last session of the Legislature. He also made an appeal for the necessity of continuing the fight in power in order to obtain the results which he desired.
